The purpose of the Minnesota Chapter of the Society of Architectural Historians (MNSAH) is:

To broaden awareness and appreciation of our architectural heritage; to promote research and provide a forum for the exchange of ideas related to architectural history; to offer opportunities to personally experience significant architectural sites, structures, and landscapes; to promote the preservation and recording of important architecture; to cooperate with learned and professional societies in the pursuit of common objectives; to seek financial support from individuals, philanthropic organizations, and foundations in the furtherance of chapter objectives; and to act as an agent for the safekeeping and distribution of funds given to it for these purposes.
